Card rooms seem harmless enough

'I don't hassle them and they don't hassle me' — merchant

Card rooms and their customers were the subject of a heated discussion between homeowners, the sheriff's office and Contra Costa County supervisors Tuesday. The homeowners lost.

The board of Supervisors approved the relocation of the Trails End card room from Pacheco to Old Crow Canyon Road in San Ramon. The board also extended the club's operating hours until 2 a.m. on weekends.

Though two local residents protested the supervisors action homeowners associations from San Ramon and Twin Creeks have never discussed the issue at their meetings.

One speaker told the supervisors, "If we allow this business to move in I see massage parlors and the rest. It will become like downtown San Francisco or Hayward."

But San Ramon Homeowners Association president Ed Laczynski, said yesterday, "I doubt if there is any antipathy to this move and it should come out in our meetings if there is."

"Personally I have no feelings either way but if the (transfer) request fits the county code I have no objection," he said.

Contra Costa Sheriff Harry Ramsay had told the supervisors the move would not create special law enforcement problems and police officials from Livermore and Pleasanton agreed with Ramsay when contacted yesterday.

"We've had operators that conduct the games well and I don't think they should be restricted as long as bingo and race-track gambling are allowed," said Pleasanton's director of public safety Walt McCloud.

He added that he opposes card rooms operating 24 hours a day however.

"We don't want to have to babysit an operator through the night and all night card rooms bring in people from other cities, particularly undesirables, with no place to go," he said.

Livermore police chief Ron Lindgren agreed and added a 2 a.m. closing time was helpful because card rooms and bars could then be policed together.

"Only recently did we have any problem and that was with an operator who was operating behind locked doors at 3:30 a.m.," he said.

Lindgren said that card club was fined $100 and its license was suspended for five days.

Bill Quebbeman, owner of the Castle card club in downtown Pleasanton, contended most card clubs were more responsibly run than many bars.

"It's the nature of the business that the owner police it more than a bar and have more control over the clients to keep the customers happy," he said.

"Everyone in the area, including the police and city hall are happy we're operating it because it presents less problems than in the past when they had just bars," Quebbeman said.

But one local merchant disagreed and said, "It's the people who have to live with it that can give you a different perspective."

"I don't have anything nice to say about bars and card rooms. I've had drunks throw up on the front of the building and fall through the window," she said.

But another shopowner, Jeanne Caiarelli said simply, "I don't hassle them and they don't hassle me."

Handling disaster with aplomb

LIVERMORE — Nearly 100 persons were injured yesterday following the collision of two buses at Wall Street and Stanley Boulevard. Emergency personnel seemed unconcerned, however, since the "disaster" was part of a drill to test emergency services preparedness.

Several persons, including students at Mendenhall Junior High School allowed themselves to be made up as badly injured, and were brought to Valley Memorial Hospital by ambulance. The less severely wounded were driven to the Family Medical Center in San Ramon.

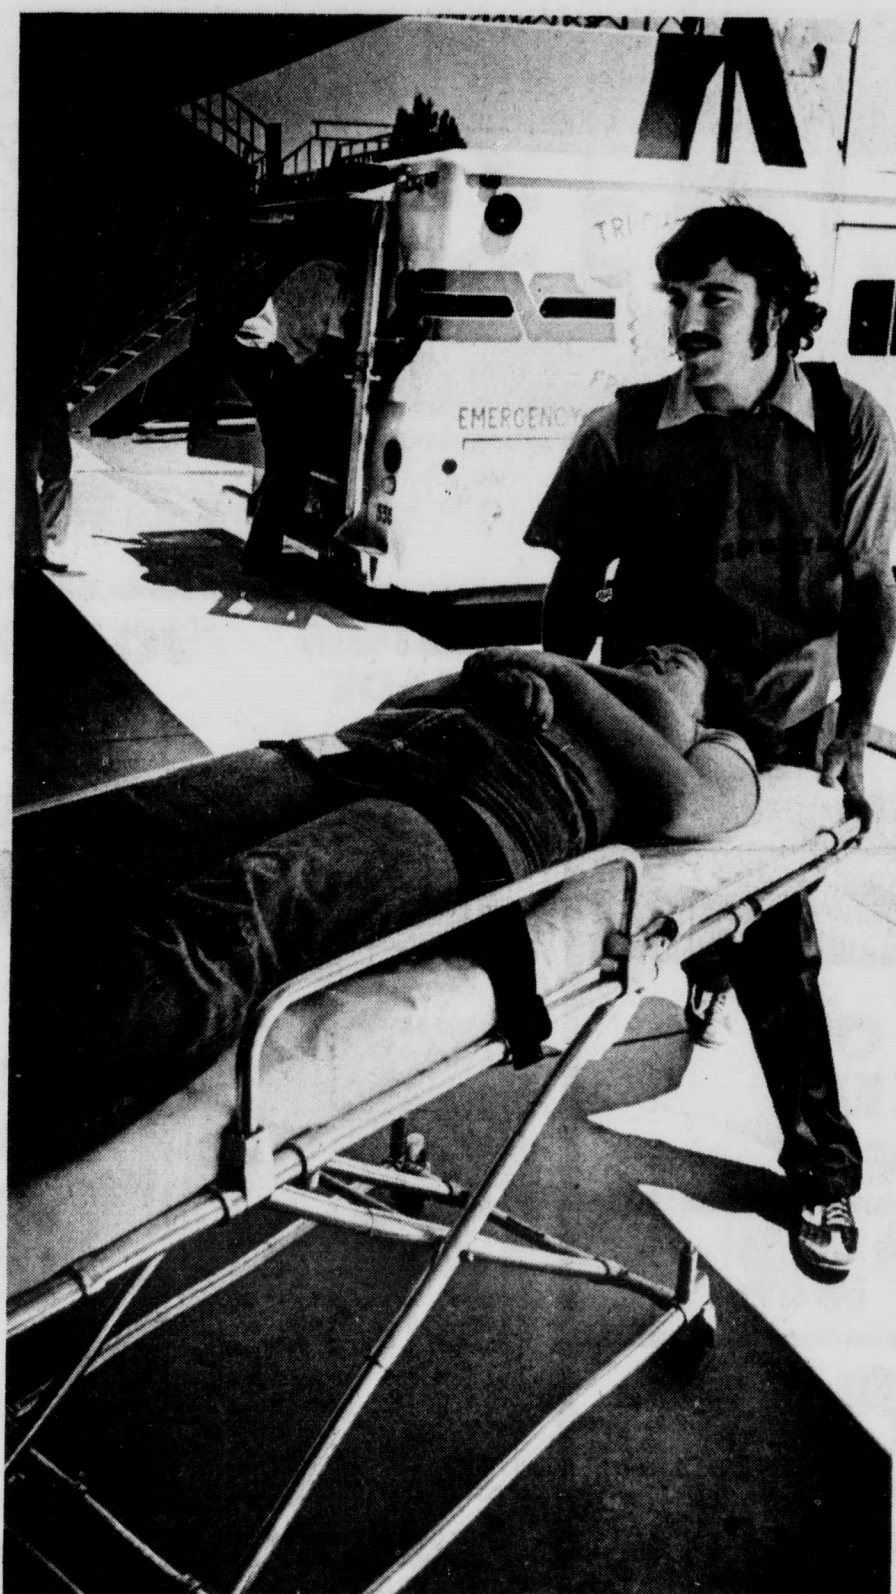

As part of its accreditation process, VMH puts itself through a drill such as yesterday's to test its ability to handle large scale emergencies. Trained observers follow each step of the operation and make full reports. All concerned, including doctors, nurses, hospital workers pressed into emergency service and even some of the victims, get together later to point out problems in the drill.

More than a dozen agencies took part in yesterday's drill, helping coordinate the event while maintaining regular emergency service capability.

After the mock collision, police notified Tri-Cities Ambulance Co., the fire department and Valley Memorial. A doctor and a nurse responded to route casualties from the scene. The fire department established a command post at the accident site.

A hospital employee pretending to be the mother of an injured student phoned the hospital in attempts to get information on the condition of "her" child. Her first call was kept on hold for more than five minutes, but a second try got a satisfactory response.

No extra employees were added to handle yesterday's expected inpouring of suffering, a hospital spokesman said. Persons working in other areas of the hospital are reassigned to assist in emergency situations.

One of nearly 100 "injured" persons was wheeled into Valley Memorial Hospital by a hospital worker pressed into emergency service during a mock disaster drill yesterday.

Livermore housing agency detours food stamp operation site

LIVERMORE — The Housing Authority failed to adopt a resolution by Commissioner Jerry Richards to locate a food stamp distribution center at Leahy Square last night.

The housing authority was left holding the bag for the food stamp program after Valley Bank notified Alameda County that they will not be participating in the issuance of food stamps after August 31.

After that date some 700 families on public assistance in the Livermore Valley will be forced to travel to Hayward to acquire food stamps.

The decision came after an hour-and-a-half debate where when Commissioner Dave Trisch said it was "foolish to spend time on the food stamp issue."

Trisch said that the city council threatened to dissolve the board and reappoint everyone on the housing authority except him if they did not take affirmative action on the resolution.

Commissioner Richards confirmed this statement came from a ranking Livermore councilman.

He said there is no other suitable location for the food stamp center. That was his conclusion after canvassing all the bales.

Richards added that he hadn't checked into the Alameda County Fairgrounds at Pleasanton yet.

Hazel Ashworth, who is a Leahy Square resident, advised Richards to check into a vacant store in the nearby shopping center.

The question of parking was raised in the discussion and Richards said the Jiffy store on East Avenue might be considered in addition to street parking around Leahy Square.

It was thought the 69 families living in Leahy Square on public assistance would benefit by locating the distribution stamp center there.

By a show of the vote the housing authority felt it was not in their scope to deal with the food stamp distribution problem.

Suburban trauma

No paradise here for farmer

PLEASANTON — One of the suburbanite's joys is having a farm or ranch next door, but if the kind of vandalism which Leonard Silva experienced Tuesday night keeps occurring, the farms may not be here much longer.

Silva leases 200 acres from Howard Hansen while the landowner waits a few more years for sewer connections to build more homes in the Del Prado tract. Silva raises hay and grain crops and now has tall stacks of oats, barley and hay standing in his fields.

Trucks come in for the baled hay, but thanks to vandals Tuesday night, they will be unable to take quite a few bales and that will cost Silva and estimated $500.

When the vandals were "having fun" tossing down the 125 lb. bales from the 12 foot tall stacks, they probably didn't stop to think about the economics of the farming business. Vandals don't know much about anything.

If they could talk to Silva face to face, they'd learn that once a bale of hay spews open its contents, the hay already is too dry to rebale. It just crumbles up.

"It's like making wine, or anything else; there's a proper time to bale hay, and that's when it's moisture content is high," said Silva. Now he will have to write off the damaged bales — and there looked to be at least 100 or 200 or more in an eyeball estimate.

The basic problem is the city slickers' attitude, says Silva. City people move out here and love to see open space near them. But they take the attitude it's just like another city park, which it isn't. And attempts to remind people they don't belong on the private property are met with hostility.

Work on budget

Trustees of the Pleasanton Joint School District will meet at 6:30 this evening for a budget work session at district offices.

Residents of the Pleasanton and Amador districts will get a chance to question the budget at public hearings slated next Tuesday and Wednesday.

Thought of suicide

Frederick N. Woods, 25, reputed mastermind of the Chowchilla mass kidnapping, considered suicide while a fugitive.

In a letter to his parents written while hiding in Canada, Woods said, "Good luck to all and I'll kill myself before I'll go behind bars."

Woods and two accomplices pleaded guilty Monday to 27 counts of kidnapping. The three were charged with hijacking a Chowchilla school bus, and later burying its riders and the bus driver in a truck trailer beneath a Livermore rock quarry.

Woods' father owns the quarry.

Looking at growth

Pleasanton's Growth Management Plan Committee, a consortium of civic and political officials, is slated to meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the city hall conference room.

The committee will take up the proposed "Growth Management Plan" that will set the pace and pattern of Pleasanton's development for the next 20 years.

Tentative plans call for awarding "points" to builders whose developments match certain criteria, and awarding limited building permits based on the number of "points" accumulated. For details, see page 2.

Aging unit explores duo county needs

DUBLIN — The special needs of senior citizens living on the county line that separates Dublin from San Ramon are being considered by the Contra Costa County area agency on aging.

This agency, under the chairmanship of Phil Flores, met last night at Shannon Community Center in Dublin with aging agency representatives from Alameda and Contra Costa counties.

Dublin and South San Ramon lie in Alameda County; North San Ramon in Contra Costa County.

To further complicate matters, some services are also provided to Dublin and South San Ramon by the Valley Community Services District.

The aim of the group headed by Flores was to see what services each county could provide in the categories of meals on wheels, home care, legal services and transportation.

Representatives said such services could be provided by both counties but efforts to overlap might prove difficult.

The representatives suggested the Contra Costa County area agency on aging should file formal proposals listing their needs to the two counties.

Some services, such as meals on wheels, require volunteer help. This type of help is difficult to find on a continuing basis, according to the county representatives.

You're not paying any more for gas

A random survey of Valley gas stations confirms what the American Automobile Association claims in a recent press release: gas prices have leveled off in the past month or two.

Five gas stations reported that they have had no increases in the past couple of months. A couple, in competition with each other, even lowered prices on self-serve regular a penny.

That would be the little gas war going on between Gas 'n' Save and Gary's Shell on First Street and Ray - Vineyard Avenue in Pleasanton.

Gary lowered the regular price to 58.9 cents per gallon to bring in the customers because he has been in stiff competition from the self-serve across the street. Gas 'n' Save responded July 4 by lowering its regular price a penny to 57.9 cents. Gary's full-serve price for the same gas is 67.9 cents.

Others in the survey revealed the following prices: Chevron company station on Hopyard Road near I-580 charges 67.9 self-serve, 71.0 for full serve on premium and 63.9 self and 67 full for regular; Ed Covey Mobil, Pleasanton, 63.9 and 67.9 regular, 67.9 and 70.9 premium; Jerry Bireley's Phillips 66, 63.9 regular and 67.9 premium, full-serve only; and Reese Peck's Arco, Livermore, 60.9 regular and 69.9 premium, full-serve only.

The release from AAA says that in the last week of July, motorists around northern and central California were paying 65.8 cents for regular and 70.9 cents for premium at nationally advertised brand stations.

The full-serve regular pumps prices averaged 67.5 cents and the mini and self-serve were 64.1 cents.

Highest mid-summer prices were observed in resort areas around Lake Tahoe, Yosemite Valley, Monterey Bay and the inland areas north of Sacramento to the Oregon border, said AAA. Prices "tended to be on the high side at several points along the highways of Nevada," added the organization. No price averages were given for the resort areas, but in the past some have listed five to 10 cents a gallon higher than locally.

Diesel fuel remained generally available at between 55 and 65 cents per gallon.

Heat closes a park, two restricted

Fire danger made it necessary for East Bay Regional Park District (EBRPD) to close down Sunol Park and place Del Valle Park in Livermore on a fire restricted status yesterday morning.

The shutdown and restriction will remain in effect until further notice, according to and EBRPD spokesman.

EBRPD Fire Chief, Rich Aranson, requested the emergency measures. Judgments are made on a day to day basis.

Mt. Diablo State Park is not closed down but no fires are allowed, according to Park Ranger Armondo Noriega. Daily readings of temperature, humidity, wind speed and fuel (grass/weeds) moisture are taken by a Park Ranger.

If the "ignition components" reach the danger point, the park will be closed down, Noriega explained.

Temperatures in the Valley rose to 95 degrees yesterday.

Look for hot growth issue

PLEASANTON — The Growth Management Committee will meet tonight at City Hall to put the finishing touches on its plan and the mood will be calm,

3 cases of encephalitis no epidemic

The Valley has seen three cases of encephalitis in the past few weeks, a rare occurrence statistically for an area with 100,000 persons, but it is no epidemic, according to Valley Memorial Hospital Administrator Tom Andrews.

Encephalitis is a general term for brain disease and can be caused by nearly anything, according to Dr. Don Milner of the Alameda County Health Services Department.

At Valley Memorial, two cases began as canker sores and the third was begun by chicken pox. The chicken pox case could have been communicable, but only as chicken pox, not as encephalitis. The canker sores were not communicable.

One of the people with a canker sore - caused case of encephalitis died early in May. The other two patients have been released from Valley Memorial.

Council Member Joyce LeClaire of Pleasanton mentioned the three cases at the recent city council meeting and asked that the county be contacted to see if there is an epidemic going around.

Dr. Milner said that any number of things can cause encephalitis, including either bacteria or a virus. The three at Valley Memorial were viral.

Silva can't keep most of his "no trespass" signs up for very long. There's only one spot they remain because a nearby homeowner calls the police whenever he sees kids entering the field at that spot. But there are not that many cooperative homeowners, said Silva.

Motorcycle riders are one of the biggest pains for Silva. They dig up his fields and pose a fire danger from sparks from their machines. At least half of the motorcycle riders are under the legal street driving age and since Pleasanton has no official motorcycle parks, they bring the rigs their parents bought them into farmers' fields.

Some urbanite even had the chutzpah to post a sign on Silva's land which said Silva was "wasting water" for his own profits while people a few miles away had it rationed. Someone even turned off his water one night while he was running a 20 hour irrigation.

The land really isn't yielding that much money in relation to the taxes, but Silva thinks it's nice the land can stay productive.

something which may not happen in a couple of months when the city council gets around to picking apart the group's report.

At least that's the prediction of Council Member Frank Brandes who told The Times this week that the public hearings on some of the panel's recommendations will make the redevelopment flap look as calm as a Gainesborough painting.

Brandes has a couple of specific objections already to the plan and he thinks quite a few citizens will flock to his corner.

For one thing, the panel is recommending a permanent committee to make growth decisions, comprised of members of various boards and commissions and a couple of city council members.

As far as Brandes is concerned, only the city council will make those decisions about growth.

Brandes also questions the recommendation that the city should have a ratio of 75 per cent single family homes and 25 per cent low and moderate income housing.

He thinks that the city will have so little growth, relatively speaking, over the next 20 years, that it will be impossible to meet those goals.

Brandes thinks that the low cost housing element "does not necessarily express the desires of Pleasanton." It may be that "some of the goals are not realistic," he said, but did not elaborate, except to say that the point system, in which developers would get encouragement for sewer connections, "may be weighted too heavily toward the development of subsidized housing."

He wishes the sign writer and a lot of other urbanites near him felt that way, too.

He wishes people would lecture kids on the need to leave farm land alone. And the older folks could get their act together, too. He has seen adults walk dogs, dump garbage and shoot fireworks onto his land. And most local farmers next to subdivisions have the same problems, said Silva.

PLEASANTON — A forum held yesterday on the consequences of using treated wastewater turned into a debate between two Valley politicians on the usefulness of the $38 million sewage disposal pipeline.

Robert Pearson, a member of the Zone 7 Flood Control and Water Conservation District board, and Lila Euler, VCSD's representative to the Livermore - Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA), clashed repeatedly on the controversial project at a panel discussion sponsored by the League of Women Voters.

Pearson said the pipeline project should have been scrapped in favor of demineralization of the incoming water supply. He disputed data prepared by LAVWMA's consulting engineers, CH2M Hill Co. of San Francisco, used in determining that the 22-mile pipeline was the best solution to the Valley's sewage crisis.

Euler defended the pipeline, saying it could be used to export brine or wastes separated by treatment processes if the Valley later decided to completely reclaim and reuse its wastewater. A disposal method would always be needed during the wet winter months and when flooding occurs, she argued.

LAVWMA is currently seeking state assistance to study the possibilities of reclamation in the Valley, and hopes to complete the study in about two years.

A major application of treated wastewater is irrigation, but the Zone 7 board, which has responsibility for protecting the Valley's large underground water reservoirs, recently voted that all wastewater be exported when the pipeline is completed in 1980. It also banned any further irrigation using wastewater, claiming that such practices cause a buildup of nitrates in the underground aquifers.

Lloyd Fowler of the Santa Clara Water District said that many areas do reclaim their wastewater and use it for fresh water purposes, but all are diluted greatly with pure water.

All water, Fowler said, has been used before. It is constantly filtered and purified by nature's natural processes, including rainfall, filtration through soil and evaporation.

The Valley has very hard water. Pearson said that demineralization of the source water, which was given up as too expensive, would give better quality water initially and would be easier to treat and reclaim.

Reclamation will be hard to finance because the pipeline project will sap most available money, he argues. "Once that $40 million pipe is built, if it can be built for $40 million, federal money will be scarcer than politicians willing to take responsibility for the pipeline," Pearson said.

Euler, a member of the six-member body that voted final approval for the project, said it was the best of many different alternatives, including demineralization, that were studied. Demineralization would cost each household $60 a month 10 years from now, she said.

Griff Johnston, a representative of the Regional Water Quality Control Board, said his agency was required to force LAVWMA to build a disposal project that would satisfy state and federal clean water standards.

The regional board encourages reclamation when it is feasible and conforms to health standards, Johnston said, but establishing a clean disposal method was its first priority.

Pearson said it was imperative to protect the 10-year supply of water contained in the Valley's underground reservoirs. He agreed that reclamation was a potentially valuable resource, but said that a full study must be undertaken to prove that the groundwater is not endangered by reuse.

Pearson termed as "mediocre" the CH2M Hill report which projected a slow but steady degradation of the groundwater due to wastewater irrigation. Euler said that the cumulative effect of irrigation using reclaimed wastewater must be studied to show its effect over a long period, perhaps as much as 50 years.

Singles clubs: what do they offer?

Newly-divorced or separated people find little glamour in the prospect of getting back into the social scene. In fact, it can be a traumatic experience for some. Singles clubs, according to one member, offer the chance to "find people who have been through the same experiences" and "learn a little more about yourself."

What is the singles scene like here in the Valley? Is it just fun, fun, fun? Or is it lonely and disillusioning?

This reporter surveyed some of the most popular Valley singles groups, asked single men and women their opinion of the situation, and came up with the answer: It depends on your outlook, and what you do about it.

There are a number of singles organizations operating in this area, and close by, which offer many types of activities, for a variety of interests.

No two of these organizations are alike, but all seem to offer to the single person opportunities to make new friends, and perhaps to find a future mate. They give single people balm for the loneliness which follows a separation or divorce. Such an organization is PWP.

Parents Without Partners is a popular organization for single parents, who need not have custody of the child to belong. Del Valle Chapter has nearly 300 members. One source said, "It's a place to go to meet others who are meeting the problems of loneliness successfully."

One woman enthused: "I prefer the family activities such as bowling and roller skating and golfing. PWP pays for this, and the children enjoy it," she said. "The people are very nice, high type persons. A lot are professionals. The girls especially in PWP are just lovely people." But another woman, a widow, was disillusioned with the group: "I don't like it anymore. It has changed. It is full of 25-year-old predatory females, who stand inside the door and grab any man who comes in."

"If one is a predatory female it's OK, she added, 'but I don't happen to be that type.'"

Here's another opinion: "I go out of curiosity and that's all. I'm simply interested in how people handle themselves in the situation," explained one female observer of human nature.

Others, it seems, find consolation with people who have been through the same experiences, like divorce, in singles groups.

"I joined PWP because I really had nowhere else to turn," says one divorced woman. "I've met some good people who've gotten me through some hard times. People who've been through the same things really can understand better," she added. "Some of the parties are good and some are not. You have to take your chances with the activities and really push yourself to go out and try new things."

"If it doesn't work out, at least I've taken the chance." She said, "Something good may happen."

An active singles organization for those who have not been married, is the Catholic Singles Club. Ray Schneider, a young man who has belonged since its inception two years ago, defines the club: "The thing that drew us together mainly was a common religious background. Those that have become involved in it aren't into the drinking or drug scene. I felt at ease right away."

"It was a very at-home

cheese tasting rides were the more parlor. "A bunch of friendly people" was an enthusiastic appraisal of the group.

In Dublin, The Valley Travel Singles Club has met once, in June, is trying to get started. It is an offshoot of a travel club for couples. There are about 25 in the group, mostly women over 50, who like to meet to enjoy travel slides. Men are welcome, as are all ages. They might consider having night meetings, if there is an interest.

The Singles Tennis Club and Singles Bridge Club

Whether it's tennis, mixing or bridge — members are looking for companionship kind of thing right from the start, a common bond that made the transition of going from strangers to friends quite fast," he added.

The group welcomes non-Catholics, but divorcees are barred; most members range in age from 25 to 35 years old. There are 10 to 15 new faces at each meeting and no religious orientation to the group. It is strictly for fun, with activities like picnicking, house parties, Pee Wee golf, evenings with dinner and then a play, or outings to places like Winchester Mystery House, or Great America.

Anthropos Mixing is a popular activity for singles, with no membership required. It is a drop-in on Friday evenings in Livermore.

One man offered the following impressions: "It has satisfied some of my needs, in that it has given me a place I can go and meet people. There is more meaning to it than if one went to a bar, and you learn something."

"You learn how to be more comfortable with new people, learn how to share myself with those people, which makes it more meaningful talking to them," he added, "and I also learn a lot about myself — self-awareness, self-discovery — learn to do something new — very healthy for me."

Mixing meetings are planned to be non-threatening to people new to being single. Some of the programs coming up: "Keys to Closer Contact," "Listening Lovingly," "Finding out about Me," "Happiness is an Inside Job," and "Men in the Here and Now."

The Valley Spokesmen Bike Club accommodates single people very nicely, although it is also family-oriented as an organization. There are 400 members both single and families. It was recently honored by the League of American Wheelmen, as the best bicycle club in America.

The group in general likes two party. One member said the wine and about one-fourth of those attending are Unitarians.

The stated purpose of the group is to establish a "family-type community of caring support for single men and women, to establish an atmosphere in which friendships may be created, and to provide a safe place where men and women may re-experience themselves as they pass through the reality of being alone."

A professional man in his 40's who attends regularly says: "I'm very high on it. A wide variety of people come to these things. It's a chance to talk to men and women with possibly the same life style, and an opportunity to create friendships."

With a wide range of activities, including parties on Saturday, guitar raps, or poetry raps during the week, volleyball on Saturdays, bridge, picnics, swimming and work days, he feels free to "pick and select the activities I think I will enjoy most."

Ages range from the 20's to the 50's, but average in the 30's and 40's.

The Sierra Club has two singles groups, Solo Sierrans, for single people of all ages, and Single Sierrans, for those under 25. They offer a wide variety of outdoor activities for single parents and their children, as well as others. Sierra Club membership is mandatory after six months.

The comments of a single, divorced mother seem to express a universal thought among single people. "It's kind of hard. I feel kind of lonely. They (singles groups) fill that need that I have to get out and feel accepted, and comfortable with other people."

The problem of finding a mate, she explained, is "a full time job. You have to go out, so that when the right person comes along you'll be there. But I just don't have the time."

She summed up her philosophy about singles groups and romance: "You can't take the group too seriously. If something nice happens, that's fine. If nothing happens, then you've gotten out for a while anyway. You just have to go and enjoy."

School board will tour Livermore district by bus

LIVERMORE — Discussing numerous objectives in a goal to improve communications with parents, students, staff and the community, the school board Tuesday agreed to take a bus tour of its facilities Aug. 27.

The decision came during review of an objective to hold three special meetings at various school sites during the year. When it was noted that officials of Livermore Area Recreation and Parks District have taken a keen interest in using new school facilities, a decision to invite them along, as well as city staff.

The board considered seven of the goals' objectives submitted by Superintendent Leo Croce, rejected one and added another.

The last one on the list calls for the board to have published in local newspapers articles written by individual board members.

The objective was discarded after debate over whether or not the articles would reflect personal, or board opinion. Board members were still encouraged to write on an individual basis.

Other objectives involved board members visiting a different school or facility once a month; meeting and exchanging information with a PTA, school advisory committee or parent club once during the school year; and attending one faculty meeting.

The board would meet with a student group at least once during the year and would invite a school or a program each month to make a short informational presentation during school board meetings.

At one point, Trustee Jim Davis questioned the top priority of the "communications goal" and asked if some other goal should have been discussed first. The board has set Oct. 14 deadline to complete a list of its own goals as a board and a list of district needs to be handled by the school administrators.

"We are no different than a sizeable corporation," said Davis, "and have no need of the board to get involved in day-to-day items."

Trustee Gail Sidhu, noting a school board has to be closer to the people it serves, said: "I don't want to be an untouchable trustee."

Board President Betty Carrell suggested trying the goals for six months.

Davis was also concerned with the suggested requirements that board members issue written reports saying they made certain visits. "There is nothing to report other than the fact I visited the school, I can't see filing a report."

Student board member Kathy Arrieta of Granada High School, said a method should be devised so members would avoid duplicating visits to some schools and ignoring others.

Davis also cautioned members visiting schools to let their hosts know anything they say is their, and not board, opinion. He also suggested any visits to student groups not be limited to the city's three high schools.

Just what county board controls

Leshar News Bureau

MARTINEZ — The county Department of Education has a total budget of over $15 million, but only $788,000 will come under the scrutiny of the Board of Supervisors.

The supervisors' finance committee will review the department's request Thursday afternoon along with the County Counsel's budget at 4 p.m.

The two county departments will be reviewed at the same time because of the County Counsel's proposal that school districts pay $114,000 for legal services they used to get for the asking.

The Department of Education is responsible for the education of physically handicapped and mentally retarded children and children in county juvenile institutions. It also provides special library and audio-visual services to school districts, assists with school building planning and provides consultation on business and financial matters.

The programs and services performed by the department are financed by district revenues and the state of California through the School Service Fund and a separate countywide property tax levy. The School Service Fund is approved by the county Board of Education and the State Department of Education.

The portion of the budget under the control of the supervisors is for business and administrative matters including the maintenance of teacher credentials and retirement records, processing of vendor and payroll warrants for school districts and budgeting and financial consultative assistance.

Even though the department's proposed budget was cut $32,000 by the county administrator, it is still $146,000 higher than it was last year.

The administrator's recommendation includes $22,000 for the cost of an election to change the office of the Superintendent of Schools from an elective to an appointive position.

How a major employer budgets

(This is the third of three articles on the 1977-78 publication budgets for the Amador Valley Joint High School and Pleasanton Joint School Districts)

The last working budget session before public hearings scheduled next week is scheduled by the Pleasanton Joint School District board tonight.

For the board and staff, these sessions represent the culmination of nearly a year's work on preparation of the most important document a public agency can put out.

The budgets of the elementary and high school districts total $18.2 million, the Amador publication budget adding up to $10.3 million of that figure.

As a comparison, the estimated budget figures for 1976-77 totaled $17.3 million, Amador being $9.9 million of that amount and Pleasanton $7.4 million.

Employe salaries and benefits represent 80 to 85 per cent of the budgets. While the percentage of the total is fixed by law, the demand for increases are not.

Nor are the prices for everything from custodial supplies to instructional materials.

The bottom line is that the districts are among the biggest employers in the Valley.

To try and educate close to 10,000 kindergarten through twelfth grade students, the Amador district will employ (for 1977-78) 190½ full-time equivalent teachers and Pleasanton 182 regular classroom teachers.

But this does not count the aides, clerks, coordinators, administration, custodians, secretaries, bus drivers, and other support personnel necessary to the functioning of a modern school district.

In the Pleasanton district, $4.4 million is budgeted for instructional programs at the seven schools. This is an increase of $260,000 from the estimated 1976-77 amount.

Pleasanton is a district that grew tremendously in the late 60s and early 70s. But enrollments have pretty much leveled off, the district enrolling 5,217 last September and finishing the year with 5,298.

Enrollment at Amador district schools has already begun to drop from a peak of near 5,000. A total of 4,879 were registered last September but that number had dipped to 4,763 by June.

To properly educate this number, $5.2 million has been budgeted for instructional programs, up $260,000 from last year. The 1977-78 figures include $4.8 million for high school students, $157,755 for adult education, and $244,071 for special education at the secondary level.

While the mountain of figures may seem mind-boggling, the real impact of any school districts, including Pleasanton and Amador, comes in looking at the number of people that are either employed or attend schools in the Valley.

In the Amador Valley Joint High School District for example, in addition to the 190½ regular classroom teachers, there are four principals (Amador, Dublin, Foothill, and Valley), nine assistant principals, 14 counselors, four librarians, four instructional aides, 19½ full-time equivalent clerical, 5 library clerks, a nurse, three health aides and 27 custodians.

But there are also 13 part-time bus drivers, administration secretaries, groundsmen, the directors of adult education, Regional Occupational Program (ROP), and vocational education, approximately 20 cafeteria personnel (including those at Pleasanton schools), and central district office administration.

The latter, as well as the assistant superintendents, coordinator of pupil personnel services, director of research and development, various secretaries and psychologists, have their salaries and benefits accounted for equally by the two districts.

As an additional note, the Pleasanton district also employs (beside the 182 regular classroom teachers projected for 1977-78), six learning disability instructors, three-and-a-half full-time equivalent speech teachers, three for music, six Miller - Unruh Reading Program teachers, and one for the mentally retarded.

All told, that $18.2 million total for the two districts will go to educate a projected 10,000 kindergarten through twelfth grade (and adult education) students in 1977-78.

They'll be served by a personnel armada that numbered 844 in the 1976-77 Amador - Pleasanton personnel directory, a number that will undoubtedly be higher this coming year.

Is it too much or too little?

That is one of the questions that Pleasanton trustees will explore tonight and the public will get a chance to question next Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

No doubt about that school rental policy

A reading of the full opinion delivered last week by state Attorney General Evelle Younger, concerning public school leasing of vacant class areas to churches, leaves no doubt that such facilities "may not be leased or granted to anyone for the teaching of sectarian doctrine."

Assemblyman Alister McAlister, D-San Jose, had requested the opinion.

Deputy attorney general Edward P. Hill, who wrote the opinion, states, "The inquiry contemplates the leasing of classrooms in public schools and is specifically related to a 1976 legislative enactment" adding a section to the Education Code and amending an existing section of the Code.

Hill capsulates the issue then, "as narrowed by the 1976 enactment, as whether a sectarian institution may lease vacant school classrooms in operating schools pursuant to the provisions of the Education Code section (16051) in order to conduct religious education."

Conclusion of the opinion is that "a sectarian institution may not lease vacant classrooms in operating schools pursuant to the provisions of the Education Code section (16051) in order to conduct religious education."

Further along in the opinion, under the section headed "Application of California Constitutional Principles," it is stated: The question to be decided is whether the lease of vacant classrooms in operating schools to sectarian organizations for religious instruction constitutes a prohibited aid of any sort in furtherance of sectarian objectives. We conclude that it does, the section states.

"There is a real, if not financial, benefit to religion whenever a religious group is provided facilities in an operating school for the purpose of promoting its religious doctrine. On the one hand, the convenience of such facilities to religiously affiliated students who are under legal compulsion to attend the school may be expected to enhance attendance at the religious classes. Furthermore, there is every likelihood that the religious classes themselves will occasion multiple contacts between the religiously affiliated students and the general student population concerning sectarian matters; religious materials brought for the religious instruction will remain with the student for exhibit throughout the day; direct and indirect solicitation by religiously affiliated students of nonaffiliated students appears more likely when the affiliated students emerge from their formal religious classes to rejoin the general student population. The connection between these religious contacts and the conduct of religious classes in operating schools is not remote."

Precedent for not allowing churches to conduct services in public school rooms goes back to at least 1943, when the state attorney General of that day issued a similar determination.

However, the crucial difference between "operating public schools" and "public school building" in the opinion appears to make church use of public school rooms on non-school days acceptable.

"Our conclusion," states the opinion written by Hill, "is not meant to prohibit the rental of public school buildings by religious groups at all times. There are times, such as weekends and certain holidays, when the public school ceases to operate. In the absence of students, classes, and co-curricular and extracurricular activities, the potential for violations is proportionately reduced. Our opinion, therefore, does not purport to prohibit sectarian organizations from renting at fair market value classrooms in public school buildings at times sufficiently remote from the operating public school."

The opinion then concludes, in part, by saying, "Public officials will have to determine on a case-by-case basis the times that are sufficiently remote from the operating public school to warrant the rentals of rooms to sectarian organizations. They will have to exercise diligence to preclude constitutionally impermissible conduct by those organizations."

Their car was just begging to be stolen. Is yours?

The Shell Answer Man tells three ways to make it tough for a car thief

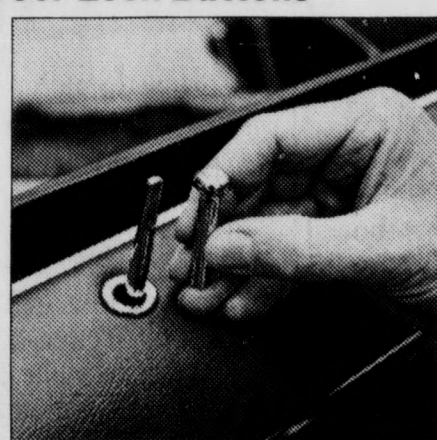

A million cars were stolen in the United States last year. Your car—no matter how old or ordinary—could be next. Here are ways to fight back before you get ripped off.

Always Lock Up

You've heard it a hundred times. But eighty percent of all cars stolen last year were simply unlocked. And believe it or not, forty percent actually had keys sitting right in the ignition.

Tapered Door Lock Buttons

Replace standard door lock buttons with the tapered kind (at right). They're almost impossible to pull up with a coat hanger.

Tapered door lock buttons: inexpensive and easy to install.

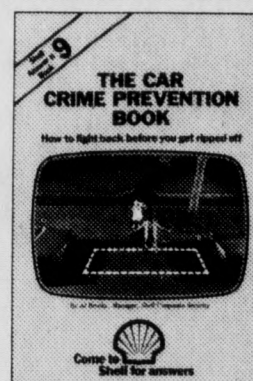

The Kill Switch

A second ignition switch—hidden. The car won't start without it. And most thieves won't take the time to look for it. It's one way to stop a thief even if he's already broken in to the car.

Huff resigns

Tony Huff, principal at Pleasanton's Walnut Grove School the past eight years, has submitted his resignation to the district, stating he plans to accept an elementary principalship in Turlock. Walnut Grove instituted the three - programs - in - one two years ago, allowing students to learn in either a pod-team teaching concept, fundamental, or open education atmosphere. The district is expected to recruit statewide for the position, pending action on Huff's resignation by the board Wednesday night. (Times photo)

Medical Center's new boss

SAN RAMON — Dr. Thomas J. O'Callaghan is the new medical director at the Family Medical Center of Valley Memorial Hospital.

He replaced Dr. Soam Sundar earlier this month at the Center located in San Ramon. The Family Medical Center is a clinic serving medical needs of San Ramon, Dublin and Pleasanton residents. It is a subsidiary of Valley Memorial Hospital in Livermore.

Born in Ireland, Dr. O'Callaghan graduated from University College and Medical School in Dublin, Ireland. He is an internist with a specialty in kidney disorders. He left Ireland in 1970.

After serving his internship at St. Mary's Hospital in Rochester, New York, he completed residencies at Mt. Sinai Medical Center in Chicago; E.J. Meyer Hospital in Buffalo, New York; Buffalo General Hospital; and Royal Victoria Hospital and McGill University Medical Center in Montreal, Canada.

Dr. O'Callaghan said he had made up his mind to move to California since it was a warmer climate. He chose San Ramon since letters from Family Medical Center officials sold him on the idea the community was a nice place to live.

"They invited me and I came," he said. "And I like the weather. It is predictably fine."

He said he has enjoyed doing some sightseeing with friends and relatives from San Francisco.

"I've done some fishing in Santa Cruz, looked around San Jose and browsed through Chinatown in the interesting city of San Francisco."

Being new to the area, he said he had not heard too much about local issues.

"However, I've been warned about the high cost of homes here."

For relaxation he said he enjoys listening to his record and tape collection of French songstress, Edith Piaf, reading "Ireland's grand poet," William Butler Yeats and reading French literature. He also plays football with San Francisco friends and does a bit of jogging as often as possible, he said.

He said one of his goals at the Family Medical Center is to provide more "personalized" service.

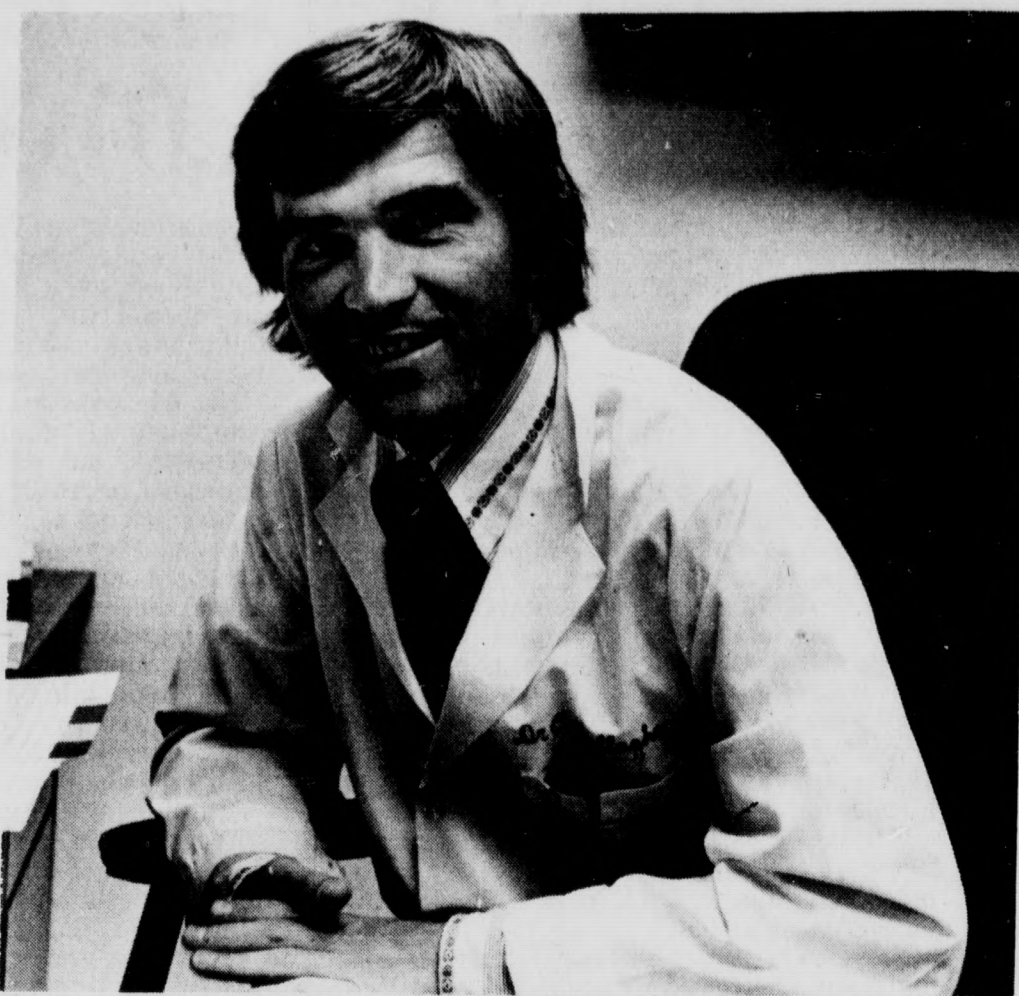

"I want people to feel they are coming to see the doctor, not the clinic."

He said he thought it would help achieve his goal if patients made more appointments with a specific doctor rather than just coming in and waiting until someone could see them. He said people sometimes had to wait "quite a long time" which can be frustrating.

"I realize emergencies must be dealt with without appointments but now 80 per cent of the people who come in here for other reasons do not have appointments; only 20 per cent do. The rest come in for emergencies or other reasons."

He declared it would also be better for the most part if doctors had their appointments lined up ahead of time. "That way, they would know an unusual case was coming up the next day and have time to do a bit of special research on it the night before."

Citizen unit on aging relays area problems

The Alameda County Commission on Aging meets monthly on the second Monday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the County Administration Building, 1221 Oak Street, Room 477, Oakland.

This group serves as an advisory group to the staff of the Alameda County Commission on Aging and to the county board of Supervisors. The Reverend Robert Vogt is commission chairman.

All sections of Alameda County are represented by a commissioner. Lists of their names are available at the county address given above.

Commissions are valuable to the community since they are concerned citizens working without a salary. They have greater objectivity and speak out freely since they do not have problems of job security, according to the Alameda County Department on Aging newsletter, The Heritage.

Some people prefer to consult such commissioners instead of staff on certain problems.

His own idea to rid sewage from area

PLEASANTON — Ray Kidder was not at all happy yesterday in the aftermath of the city council's rejection of CARD Committee's petition for a referendum on the LAVWMA pipeline project.

It wasn't so much the final score as the way CARD lost that bothered him, he said.

For example, take the claim by City Attorney Ken Scheidig that if the city waits past the Sept. 30 deadline for funding, it will cost local homeowners $50 per month extra when all local funds have to be used to build the $38 million pipeline.

The only funds that would be lost after Sept. 30 are the state bond funds, said Kidder. That's 12.5 per cent of the financing.

Another 75 per cent of the financing comes from the federal government and a federal spokesperson at the meeting Monday night said that the federal money will be available next year, too. "So that's only one-eighth of the money that might be lost," said Kidder. "And that isn't clear, because there may be other revenue sources available from the state after Sept. 30."

"But even if we lose the state money, the real answer is to build a better, cheaper project. It would save that one-eighth and a lot more," said Kidder.

Kidder's own idea to solve the Valley's effluent is two-fold. In phase one, Kidder would dam up the effluent for a few weeks at a time behind a dam somewhere just west of Interstate 680. Then Fremont, which has been complaining about the "dirty" Valley effluent, would run its water source through the Niles Cone, uncontaminated by the Valley effluent.

After Fremont has clean water safely charged into the ground, it would open up its dam gates and the Valley effluent would flow through the Niles Cone without entering the Fremont underground.

In phase two, the Valley could build a gravity pipeline to the Niles Cone far cheaper than the maintenance costs involved with the current plan for the Dublin grade.

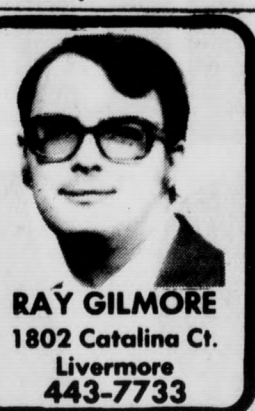

On the Dublin grade (Boehmer Summit), there will be enough energy spent daily to lift the equivalent of 20,000 full-sized automobiles over the hill.

That's a lot of energy in these energy-conscious times and if Congressman Pete Stark realized that, maybe he'd take a dim view of federal financing of the Boehmer Summit plan, said Kidder.

Kidder also objected to Scheidig's treatment of CARD's petition Monday night. Scheidig read an from an early copy of the CARD petition and it was different from the one turned in, chiefly in the latter request that all of the pipeline project, not just a part, be referended. In court, this difference might impress a judge to the extent he will overrule the city's objections to a new referendum, said Kidder.

CARD met last night and was expected to refer the question of a suit against the city to its attorney. It will cost an estimated $5,000 to fight all the way to appellate court, if necessary, and the group is not sure the petition signers will back their signatures with money.

No stop sign, city must accept that

LIVERMORE — City council took a stoic position Monday after being officially told by state transportation officials a request for a four way stop sign at Vancouver Way and Holmes Street was being denied.

"They have the final say and we recognize that," said Mayor Helen Tirsell, a personal friend of the family of eight-year-old Tony Thomas who died after being struck by a vehicle in that intersection several months ago.

Several thousand local residents had signed a petition asking for a traffic light at the intersection and council forwarded the request to CalTrans.

While engineering is under way for the light, an interim four way stop sign had been requested. The light is scheduled for completion next March.

CalTrans officials issued a report to city council which said stop signs at the intersection would not be effective, but would in fact cause more accidents.

"They made a good point that a lot of people will ignore the signs," said Tirsell, who noted it is not a four way street, but a three way street. El Caminito cuts into Holmes less than 50 yards from Vancouver Way, on the other side of Holmes St.

Caltrans officials also noted pedestrians would get a false sense of security from the temporary stop sign and would not pay attention to the traffic that doesn't pay attention to the stop sign.

TO SAVE ENERGY:

GIVE YOUR APPLIANCES HOT AFTERNOONS OFF THIS SUMMER.

Hot summer afternoons are when the use of electricity is highest.

And this summer, the water shortage has cut PG&E's hydroelectric generating capacity way down. Even though we're buying all the surplus energy we can from neighboring utilities, there may not be enough power to go around.

So, on hot summer afternoons, cut down on your use of electricity as much as possible. Don't use major appliances such as washers, dryers, dishwashers, or electric ranges.

Air conditioners use a lot of power. So try setting yours at 82 degrees. Or even better, shut it off.

By cutting back, you'll help prevent power shortages. And that'll help assure that essential appliances like refrigerators and freezers keep running.

Parking district abolished

LIVERMORE — The rent hike proposed for downtown businesses whose customers use the merchants' parking lot was cancelled Monday by city council when they rang the death bell for the current downtown parking district.

A minor rebellion by some local merchants in recent weeks indicated to council members the businesses did not want the lot because of the high cost and crowded conditions there.

The lot is next to the municipal court, behind First Street businesses.

Council agreed to terminate the parking district next July and City Manager Bill Parness was instructed to outline for council the steps necessary to acquire the property.

The property is being appraised by an independent contractor, according to Ed Schilling, assistant to the city manager. He said Parness is expected to submit the appraisal and financing methods for acquisition to council in September.

A survey had been conducted by city staff indicating 90 spaces in the merchants' lot, 42 spaces in the municipal court lot adjacent to it, and 49 employees at the county building in which the court is located.

Opening on airport commission

MARTINEZ — A position is open for one member-at-large to serve a four-year term on the Advisory Body of the Airport Land Use Commission for Contra Costa County.

They will be selected by members of the existing commission. There is no salary.

To qualify, the applicant must be a resident of Contra Costa County interested in land use related to county airports.

Chowchilla mastermind thought of suicide

OAKLAND (AP) — The reputed mastermind of the Chowchilla mass kidnapping threatened to kill himself before he would be taken into custody, according to court documents disclosed today.

Frederick N. Woods, 25, in a letter to his parents written while he was a fugitive in Canada, closed by saying:

"Good luck to all and I'll kill myself before I'll go behind bars! I don't want the police to get the satisfaction of catching me. If they get me, they will get a body!"

The letter was written several days after the July 15, 1976, gunpoint abduction of 26 Chowchilla school children and their bus driver. They were buried in an air-equipped underground dungeon but clawed their way out 17 hours later.

The letter was part of the evidence presented to the Madera County Grand Jury that indicted Woods and his cohorts, James and Richard Schoenfeld. The transcript and other court documents were ordered unsealed by Superior Court Judge Leo Deegan after published reports in several newspapers disclosed their contents.

The documents outlined the brief fugitive lives of Woods and the Schoenfelds. All three entered surprise guilty pleas Monday to 27 counts of kidnapping for ransom.

According to grand jury witnesses, Woods and the Schoenfelds gathered at a San Jose warehouse the night of July 16 after hearing news bulletins that the captives had escaped their would-be tomb.

Woods and the elder Schoenfelds, according to a woman witness, loaded weapons, sleeping bags and other gear into a 1963 model car and fled. The younger Schoenfeld went to the family's comfortable Atherton home to wait. He eventually surrendered voluntarily.

Woods apparently made it to Canada by July 24 but Schoenfeld was stalled at the border when two guns were confiscated.

"I watched TV with the border people and they treated me to a soda," Schoenfeld wrote in a letter, "but they wouldn't let me in."

When turned away a second time, he bought an old truck and was about to make a third attempt when he heard the news of the youngsters' escape.

While fleeing through Idaho, he jotted down his thoughts on notebook paper that became part of the file of evidence:

"If I should meet my maker at an untimely time, like the near future, then I hope I should be exemplified so others shouldn't make the same mistake ... Somebody tell me it's all a dream," Schoenfeld wrote.

In reports published Tuesday and based on the grand jury transcript, The Sacramento Bee said Schoenfeld and Woods had discussed the plot with a Hollywood script writer.

"It was just a crazy idea, just a wild idea, and I never thought we'd do anything," Schoenfeld told investigators, according to the Bee's report on the transcript.

Manfred proves worthy at rugby

SANTA ROSA — Manfred Moore, the first National Football League player to compete in Australia's professional rugby league, says he thinks he proved something to Australian fans and players.

"There was a lot of skepticism as to whether an American player could adapt to rugby, but I think I showed that the skepticism wasn't really right," the Oakland Raider halfback said.

"I was the first black to play in the league, the first NFL player and the only American playing, but I tried not to let the pressure bother me. All I could was go out and play.

"In the end, I think, I reached the point where the other players appreciated my value to the team," he added.

Moore, 26, now in his fourth year, was contacted during last season by the owner of the Newtown Jets, a Sydney team in the Australian "football" league.

He joined the team after the Raiders' Super Bowl victory and played in six games, about half the regular season schedule, and left Australians impressed with his play.

Moore, a former Southern California fullback, was something of a curiosity when he joined the Jets. The team, which had averaged crowds of 2,600, attracted 8,000 for his first game in Sydney.

Rugby, Moore said, has two prime differences from NFL play — neither forward passing nor blocking are allowed. The lack of blocking and the fact that little or no padding is worn can lead to serious injuries.

"I suffered the worst injury of my career," says Moore. "I got kicked in the head and had to have some stitches. That memory will stay with me for a long time."

Rugby as played in Australia features 13 players on a team and every player is a potential ball carrier. Instead of blocking for the runner, as the NFL does, players try to get in position for a lateral from the player with the ball.

Only two substitutions are allowed per 80 minutes game, forcing players to play both offense and defense. "My most effective playing was probably on defense," says Moore, a special teams player for most of his NFL career.

Although the forward pass is illegal, Moore convinced the Newtown team to work on an overhand lateral — sort of a cross field pass — and although it was tried in practice the team never got adept enough to use it in a game.

Moore predicts Australian rugby will start attracting more American players during the off season and the sport could be to football what Japanese baseball is to the American major leagues.

"I think the fact that everybody is a ball carrier would have some attractive to NFL line-men," he says.

King's still on top of the hill

NEW YORK — For a guy who is supposed to be under a cloud of suspicion, boxing promoter Don King is doing all right.

King, you may recall, was given up for dead a couple of months ago when his United States Boxing Championships were suspended by ABC in the wake of charges of phony rankings, kickbacks and generally shady behavior.

Accusations flew everywhere. A grand jury in Baltimore launched an investigation. ABC hired special investigator Michael Armstrong to ferret out wrongdoing. King conducted a purge of his closest associates. Don King Productions was clearly a disaster area.

But reports of King's demise have been premature, to say the least. The grand jury apparently hasn't found anything illegal and indications are it won't. King's associates are back and, more importantly, business is flourishing.

King is promoting the four bout heavyweight card featuring Ken Norton against Lorenzo Zanon and Jimmy Young against Jody Ballard from Las Vegas on Sept. 14. NBC will televise the four fights in prime time from 8 to 11 p.m. EDT.

Austad keeps 57 nine alive

NEWARK — Eric Austad came through with one of his better performances of the season and it couldn't have come at a better time as far as his teammates are concerned.

Austad struck out 15 batters and walked none as his District 57 American team romped over District 59, 4-0 at Memorial High School here to stay alive in the Big League Secional playoffs.

Eric only allowed three hits, and didn't allow a man to reach second the entire contest.

As a result of the victory the American squad will face the loser of last night's contest between Central Coast and District 57 National tonight at 5:30 on the Memorial diamond. The winner of tonight's game will vie with the winner of the CC-District 57 National contest for the title at 1 Saturday at Memorial.

"My best pitch today was the slider," admitted Austad after the contest. "I didn't allow anyone to reach second and that was a big factor."

Austad was the picture of perfection, striking out the side in the opening inning and fanning the last two batters of the contest.

District 57 struck for its first run in the third stanza.

After two outs Bret Cary blasted a double and Kevin Jons followed with a towering triple over the head of District 59 center fielder Andy Gonzales that scored Cary. Steve Jayko grounded out to end the inning.

The winners added three insurance runs in the fifth, getting just two hits.

Rick Dayton struck out to open the inning but the ball got away from the catcher and he was safe at first. However, he was picked off first by District 59 pitcher Kergan Peterson.

Larry Walters walked but Mark Silva grounded to third and Walters was forced at second. However, Bret Cary followed with a single and Jones walked to load the bases. A passed ball brought Silva in with the second run.

A single by Jayko brought in Cary and Jones with the game's final runs.

The victors only had five hits but made the most of them. Only one of the American hits came in an inning when they didn't score, that a single by Austad in the bottom of the sixth stanza.

Cary led the winners' attack with two hits and scored twice. Jayko added a hit and also had two RBI's.

The fifth was the only inning in which Austad failed

Angels handle A's, Mitchell

OAKLAND — Paul Mitchell, Pleasanton's traveling right-hander, changed uniforms for the fifth time this season yesterday evening but, by the end of the night, he was still winless in the major leagues.

The Oakland A's, whom Mitchell joined for the second time this season after a pair of stints in San Jose and one demotion to Chattanooga, dropped a merciless quick 9-3 decision to the California Angels before a half-priced crowd of 5,501 at the Coliseum.

The game occupied just 2:11 of air time on local television and featured Mitchell's third loss without a win, while Angel starter Ken Brett evened his record at 8-8.

The A's trailed, 6-1, by the time Mitchell was taking out in the top of the fifth.

All the runs off Mitchell, called up to Oakland earlier in the day when Earl Williams went on the disabled list, came on two swings of the bat.

In the first inning, Mitchell walked the lead-off batter, Jerry Remy before yielding a line-drive double off the right-field fence to Rance Mulliniks. After inducing Bobby Bonds to pop up to center field, Mitchell walked Tony Solaita.

That set up former Oaklander Don Baylor's 13th home run of the season, a slammer that put California ahead 4-0.

After that, however, Mitchell appeared to settle down, retiring 12 Angels with only a walk to Bonds in the third inning breaking the string.

In the meantime, Larry Murray's first major-league home run in the bottom of the third put some groceries on the table of Lela Meyer through television's home run sweepstakes contest and, incidentally, nibbled away at the Angel lead.

But with one out in the fifth California struck again.

Remy grounded a broken-bat single up the middle and Mulliniks blasted his third home run of the season on unto the stairway beyond the right-field wall. It was his second of the year against Oakland and brought reliever Doug Bair in from the bullpen.

NOTES: — Despite last night's loss, the A's clinched the season series with the Angels with nine victories to date... Of the nine wins, the A's have come from behind to win seven times... The A's, with Williams, Mike Norris (twisted right knee) and George Medich (bone chip in right elbow) all recently added to the disabled list, Oakland now numbers 14 players on the infirm roster, including regulars Bill North and Mike Jorgensen... Vida Blue celebrates his 27th birthday today... Groups were in attendance last night from St. Clare's Church of Pleasanton, the Pleasanton American Little League All-Stars and the San Ramon Valley Recreation Department.

YOUNGEST COACH ATLANTA (AP) — Leeman Bennett, the new head coach of the Atlanta Falcons of the National Football League, at 38 is the youngest head coach in the league. He is the fifth head coach in the history of the Falcons, following in the footsteps of Norb Hecker.

Giants' Tim Foli takes throw too late to stop Larry Randle from stealing second.

16-hit Met attack sinks hapless SF

The New York Mets banged out 16 hits, including a rare Felix Millan homer Wednesday to down the San Francisco Giants, 7-4, and sweep the two-game series at Candlestick Park.

Joe Torre's Mets, who rest in the cellar of the National League East, wouldn't mind playing the Giants more often. They've taken six of nine from San Francisco.

The score could have ballooned into a runaway had the New Yorkers been more productive with men on bases. No less than 15 Mets were stranded as five SF pitchers gave up nine walks, two intentional.

Millan, who entered the game with a .228 batting average, enjoyed himself immensely, pounding out three hits in five trips to the plate. His solo homer in the ninth off usually reliable reliever Gary Lavelle was only his second of the season and the 21st in his 10 big league campaigns.

It also was the first circuit clout off Lavelle in 11 1/2 innings. Last team to hit one out against Gary was Pittsburgh in August of 1976. Jon Matlack, the Mets' southpaw who has been having his troubles this summer, worked the first five innings, enough to get credit for the victory, his sixth against 12 losses. He complained of tightness in his shoulder. During his tenure Jon allowed only two hits and one run. He struck out two and walked two.

He was followed to the hill by three other of Torre's moundsmen, with Skip Lockwood, final Met pitcher picking up his 15th save.

Lockwood retired all nine Giant batters he faced. Rookie Steve Henderson of the Mets, who tripled and singled during the day, drove in two New York runs.

Bob Knepper, rookie left-hander of the Giants, encountered rough going at the outset, walking two of the first four batters he faced. He was tagged for a triple by vinthe second which right fielder Jack Clark misplayed. Yet Knepper was unscored upon entering the third. That's when the roof caved in. Millan singled and Henderson and John Stearns drew walks. John Milner singled home Millan. Mike Vail's sacrifice fly to right brought in Henderson and Lee Mazzilli's single scored Stearns. That made it 3-1. The Giants had scored in the second on Clark's triple to left center and a subsequent Gary Thomasson sacrifice fly to right.

Hill leaves Classic

PHILADELPHIA — Dave Hill's withdrawal Wednesday cut still further into the relatively thin ranks of pro golf's top names that are assembled for the $200,000 Philadelphia Classic.

Hill, a former Philadelphia champion who has a habit of playing very well on the tight little 6,687-yard, par 71 Whitmarsh Valley Country Club course, asked for and received a release from the tournament sponsors. No specific reason was given for his pullout.

Johnny Miller had withdrawn earlier.

Their absence left Ray Floyd, U.S. Open champ Hubert Green, Ben Crenshaw and defending title holder Tom Kite as the top attractions in the 156-man field that begins a 72-hole chase Thursday for a $40,000 first prize.

With the tour seven months old and winding down to an end, many of the game's top names — including top three money-winners Tom Watson, Jack Nicklaus and Bruce Lietzke — are taking a break before of a couple of big, important, late-season events, the PGA and World Series.

Kite, however, defended the line-up.

"There are an awful lot of good players on the tour now, an awful lot of guys capable of winning at any time," he said. "No one man dominates the tour any more."

"At one time if a tournament sponsor had Arnold (Palmer) in his field he was set. If he didn't have Arnold he was hurting. That's not true any more. There are too many good players, too many guys who can win. The tour is setting records for attendance every week. We must be doing something right."

Kite, personally, has been doing something right, too. Although he hasn't won since his only tour victory in this event a year ago, the personable young Texan has been playing very solidly this season. He was third in the Masters, had his hand in the American domination of the British Open and finished a strong third last week in the Canadian Open.

"This is fun," he said. In addition to Floyd, winner of two titles this season, Green and Crenshaw, other 1977 title holders in the field include Andy Bean, Danny Edwards, Tom Purtzer,

Road show

A pair of Pleasanton gymnasts, Diane Dunbar and Kevn Mabrey, nationally known members of the Diablo Gymnastics Club, will hit the road again Friday and Saturday — only this time the trip will be just a short trip up the freeway to Ygnacio Valley High School in Concord. The occasion is the club's annual "Flip-Flop Follies" to be conducted Friday and Saturday nights at 7:30 with a matinee slated Saturday at 2 p.m. After the show it will be curtains for the talented pair as members of DGC. Dunbar has accepted an athletic scholarship to the University of Utah and Mabrey has been awarded a similar deal at Clarion State College in Pennsylvania.

Family pair lead keggers

The father and daughter team of Cliff and Pam Anderson led the bowling action at Granada Bowl last week in summer league play.

Cliff, bowling in the Caratti Jewelers League, fired a torrid 637 series with games of 196-221 and 221. Pam, in the Beauticians League, bowled way over her average of 121 with games of 171-173 and 146 for her first over 500 series.

Lee Hall and John Chandler led the Jubilee Classic with Hall posting games of 232-176-247 for a 665 series and Chandler had an 870 series with games of 234 and 221.

Summer cage playoffs

Dons, Hayward meet for title

Pleasanton and Hayward will vie for the championship of the Pleasanton Recreation Allied Brokers summer basketball league playoffs title tonight at 8:30 in Amador Valley High School's gym.

Both teams made it to the finals by taking tight wins late Tuesday night. Pleasanton had a hot third quarter in disposing of Fremont, 40-36 and Hayward edged Dublin, 63-57.

Dublin will play Fremont for the third place mark at 7:30 and Pleasanton-Foothill and Livermore tangle for the consolation championship at 6:30.

Pleasanton trailed 16-14 entering the third quarter but tanked 16 markers to just 10 for Fremont to grab a 30-26 advantage at the third-quarter break.

Each team scored 10 points in the final period. Rick Howard and Ken Noble, who shared scoring honors for the contest with 14 apiece, got hot in the second half and Pleasanton took control.

Howard canned 10 points in the second half and Noble eight. Noble had six points in the third quarter.

The Dons took the lead for good on baskets by Howard and Creighton Kearns for a 22-20 advantage early in the third period.

Pleasanton kept the pressure on throughout the final quarter, building up a 36-28 lead with four minutes to go on Noble's lay-up.

Noble, Howard and Kearns took control of the boards in the second half as the Dons went ahead.

Kearns added six markers, all coming in the crucial third quarter.

Tim Henning led the losers with 12 points. Marty Mills added eight and Jeff Booher six.

Pleasanton was a perfect six of six from the charity stripe while Fremont canned six of eight free throw attempts.

Dublin dominated action in the first half of the game with Hayward but the Mariners came on strong in the third period and held on for the victory.

The Gaels led 29-26 at halftime but Hayward scored 27 points in the third period to 13 for Dublin to take a 53-42 advantage at the quarter break.

Hayward led by as much as 12 points in the contest but Dublin made several rushes at them to close the gap.

Jeff Kinman was the main man in Hayward's attack as he wished the nets for 17 points. Steve Snarr added 11 and Dale Bailey and Dave O'Brien each added 10 markers.

Tony Beville added eight. Jeff Magathen and Jeff Barnes each tanked 11 point share scoring honors for the Gaels. Dan Pearson added nine as did Kurt Vollbrecht.

Barnes was the only Dublin player who hit a hot streak in the critical third quarter, canning six of his points in that period. Magathen, who was a dominating force on the boards in Monday night's win over Livermore, tanked seven of his markers in the second quarter.

The teams were almost equal in fouls, Dublin committing 17 and Hayward 18.

5th inning dooms Pleasanton nine

A five-run fifth inning proved to be the difference as Centerville National topped Pleasanton American 7-2 in Major Division All-Star Little League action Tuesday night.

The score was tied 2-2 entering the fifth but the Fremont club got its five big ones then to cinch the victory.

The winners had six hits and Pleasanton American three.

Eric Snowden had a single and RBI for the losers. Steve Hickey and Mike Schnorr had the other Pleasanton American hits.

Donnie Gassoway and Fernand Viera each had two singles for Centerville National. Peter Villalobos added a double.

Eric Patterson was the winning pitcher and Max Diaz took the defeat.

Pleasanton American scored both its runs in the fourth stanza.

Niles Centerville clubbed 14 hits in taking a 15-7 decision over Dublin Tuesday night.

The winners only led 2-1 entering the fourth frame but exploded for Bringing back the good old days of television

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Network reruns in summertime cause the nightly blahs, even though the wares are fairly new. But one station fights the blahs rather uniquely — with certified ancient reruns.

It's part of "The Fourth Annual Festival of Television" that starts at 10 p.m. and runs an hour each week night, for seven weeks this summer on KBHK, an independent UHF station in San Francisco.

The festival is a veritable cornucopia of musty — "Our Miss Brooks" (1955), "Car 54, Where Are You" (1961), "December Bride" (1954) and "Bachelor Father" (1958), are among the goods on display.

This year's affair, begun

July 19, commenced three summers ago as "really an idea born out of desperation," says Derk Zimmerman, the station's program director.

He said his station then had planned for Dinah Shore's syndicated variety series to begin in late fall, but found it wasn't going into production until Oct. 20 that season.

"All the networks were premiering their new series in September," he said. "We didn't have anything to premiere until the Shore show arrived. So we came up with the 'First Annual Festival of Television.'"

Having opted to battle network premieres this way, KBHK launched its ah, new season on Sept. 2 with theme nights — comedies one night, Westerns the next, mysteries the next and so on.

Depending on the night, viewers could tune in "Leave It to Beaver" (1957), "I Led Three Lives" (1953), "Bat Masterson" (1958) or even 1955's "Science Fiction Theater," hosted by Truman Bradley.

"I really didn't have much hope for it," Zimmerman admitted. "I thought, well, somebody might say, 'Isn't that neat, watch it a couple of times and then that'd be it.'"

"But it was a big hit. Everybody said please do it again."

It was done again. And again, the third summer a late-afternoon nostalgia rush of such true ancients as "Wild Bill Hickock" (1951), "My Little Margie" (1952) and "Topper" (1953), along with such upstarts as "Hennessey" of 1959 and "Mr. Ed," class of '61.

This summer's all-comedy festival has a new feature, Terry McGovern, a local personality who runs a nightly trivia quiz on, say, the identity of the announcer — sidekick on the "Burns and Allen" show.

(Answer: Harry Von Zell.)

This summer's effort, at seven weeks, is the longest so far.

"I really think that's the maximum life you can get out of one of these things" before patrons start snoring, Zimmerman said.

Dublin High performance

Kevin Carlson, left, Keith Murray, Mike Foley, Rich Carlson and Mike Tringali are known professionally as Ginger. Their band and Premier will start playing July 29 at 8:30 p.m. in Dublin High School Little Theatre. Tickets are $2. They can be purchased in advance at Dublin High pool or at Shannon Park Community Center. For further information call the Valley Community Services District (VCS) Recreation Department, 828-7711.

Gypsy and the politicians on TV

Valley viewers can see former Las Vegas television producer Steve Oldfield, now proprietor of the Something's Fishy Pet Store in Pleasanton, back on the air tonight. Oldfield will interview prominent Republicans Ken Maddy, Mike Antonovich and John Briggs on The Cable Connection, broadcast at 8 p.m. on Cable TV Channel 10 in Pleasanton and Dublin. The regularly scheduled network program may be seen on Channel 5 at the same time.

Cable Connection also will visit a rehearsal for "Gypsy," the musical comedy to be presented next month by Chabot College

Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen

Bishop Sheen Hospitalized

NEW YORK (AP) — Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen, 82, has undergone emergency heart surgery here and "is doing well, considering all circumstances," his doctor said Tuesday.

Dr. Michael Bruno said the retired head of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith was operated on July 15 at Lenox Hill Hospital "as a life-saving procedure." He said the surgery did not follow a heart attack, as earlier reported.

Dr. Michael Bruno said the retired head of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith was operated on last Friday at Lenox Hill Hospital "as a life-saving procedure" after suffering a heart attack.

Bishop Sheen is doing well, considering all things, in particular his age. He is not out of danger at this time," the doctor said in a statement.

Millions of Catholics and nonCatholics know him as the television host of "Life is Worth Living."

Approved this 19th day of July, 1977
 /s/ Wayne Barnes
 Clerk/Secretary of the governing board
 Amador Valley Joint Union High School District
 Amador Valley Joint Union High School District, in accordance with Paragraph (b) of Education Code Section 46616 (new) will hold a public hearing in the District Education Center of Amador Valley Joint Union High School District, located at 123 Main Street, Pleasanton, California, on August 2, 1977, at 8:15 o'clock p.m.
 The purpose of this hearing is to take action on the estimated cost to the local taxpayers for the attendance of pupils attending Amador Valley Joint Union High School District from other school districts within the State of California. Income from the state and fees from adult pupils is sufficient to finance all of the cost of pupils from other school districts that attend Amador Valley Joint Union High School District.

Merit Outdates Conventional Low Tar Cigarettes.

'Enriched Flavor'™ technology matches taste of cigarettes having 60% more tar.

There is a way to pack flavor—incredible flavor—into a cigarette without boosting tar.

That's the report on MERIT and the remarkable breakthrough called 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

Tobacco that for the first time delivers flavor you wouldn't expect in a low tar cigarette.

MERIT and MERIT 100's were packed with this special tobacco. And taste-tested among thousands of smokers like yourself.

If you smoke, you'll be interested.

Taste-Test Proof

MERIT and MERIT 100's

Kings: 8 mg. 'tar,' 0.5 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette, FTC Report Dec. '76 100's: 12 mg. 'tar,' 0.9 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC Method.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

were tested against a number of higher tar brands. The results proved conclusively that 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco does boost taste without the usual increase in tar.

Overall, smokers reported they liked the taste of both MERIT and MERIT 100's as much as the taste of the higher tar cigarettes tested.

Cigarettes having up to 60% more tar than MERIT.

Only one cigarette has 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. And you can taste it.

Holiday Innkeeper worked his way from the bottom

LIVERMORE — Paul Yochum is the new innkeeper for Livermore's Holiday Inn, replacing Al Souders who left to head his company's operations in Reno.

Yochum, 30, is one of those people who literally "worked himself up from the bottom," starting his experience in food preparation with after school jobs during his high school years and working up to an innkeeper position in Chicago.

A native of Rochester, Minnesota, he earned a degree in philosophy from St. Mary's College, Winona, Minn. He spent three years in a seminary before deciding to join the U.S. Air Force.

While in the service, Yochum worked in intelligence during tours to Japan and Korea. He was also stationed at Andrews Air Force Base, near Washington, D.C.

Starting his career as a kitchen worker in a small Minnesota supper club chain, he became assistant chef and head dinner cook.

Yochum met the food and beverage director of a Holiday Inn on a social basis and was soon referred to that organization's personnel department. He landed a position as food and beverage director of one of the smallest of Chicago's 35 Holiday Inns, working up to the position of innkeeper within a year.

Like his predecessor Souders, Yochum expects to be active in the community, sponsoring several programs at the hotel.

Praising Souder's organization and staff, Yochum said, "The success or failure of this hotel depends on the people here (employees) and they are all residents of the community."

Souder was often in the news, fighting with city hall for the new freeway sign variance and being dunked in the pool by his employees when they completed his challenge of donating $100 for the Easter Seal campaign.

Health clinic for those who travel

A countywide clinic to provide travel immunizations, validation of international certificates of vaccination and information on how to protect personal health while traveling has been opened by the Alameda County Health Care Services Agency.

It is located at the Eden Health Center, Building G, Fairmont Hospital grounds, 15400 Foothill Boulevard, San Leandro.

"The new Eden Travel Clinic will provide a centralized location for Alameda County citizens to obtain required or recommended shots for country they plan to visit," Communicable Disease Bureau Chief Dr. Donald Milner said.

The clinic will offer travel immunizations once a week on Thursdays, 5 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Fees are commensurate with private office charges.

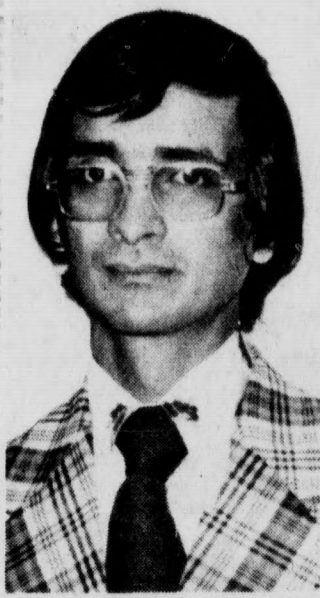

Vaccination certificates also may be validated at the Eden Health Center and other county agency health centers on weekdays, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. To phone Eden Travel Clinic or Eden Health Center, call 577-1620.

Local products

Al and Andy Avilla, a father and son team who are the proud owners of All City Floors, are pleased to announce the relocation of their shop from First Street in Livermore to its new location at 803 Rincon Ave. in the Rincon Shopping Center. Both men were born and raised in the Valley and have a great deal of experience in the floor covering field, as well as in the construction of homes. Stop by and see them and their new store, as well as the fine selection of carpets and vinyl floor coverings. Store hours are 9 to 5 Monday through Friday, Saturday 10 to 3, and evenings by appointment only. Shown at recent ribbon cutting ceremonies are Patty Grossman, Andy Avilla, Tanya Snel, Maid of Livermore, Al Avilla, and Pamela Critchfield and Ed Rivinises of the Chamber of Commerce.

Jose A. Ayala recently transferred to the Livermore Veterans Association Hospital as the new chief of building management service from the VA Domiciliary in White City, Ore. Born in Puerto Rico, he attended New York City College in 1969 and started his career with the VA at the VA hospital in Montrose, N.Y. He will reside in Livermore with his wife and two daughters, aged seven and five.

Request to build here

PLEASANTON — Morrison Homes wants to build a townhouse - duplex style development on 10 acres southeast of the Alpha Beta Shopping Center and will seek approval for it August 10 at the planning commission.

Zoning in the usual duplex district allows five units per acre, but Morrison wants a Planned Unit Development, which allows a maximum of eight units per acre.

Some of the proposed units would be two stories and many will be expandable. The lots average around 4,000 square feet.

The planning staff has determined that an Environmental Impact Report does not need to be filed.

El Vaquero adds a personal touch

LIVERMORE — El Vaquero has developed an outstanding reputation for home-cooked Mexican food since it opened last summer.

Located at the corner of Third and "L" Streets El Vaquero offers a fine blend of hot Mexican food with the friendly "home-spun" touch portrayed by members of the six families who own the establishment.

"We will be opening another restaurant called La Mexicana, in Dublin," said co-owner Colette Flores.

If the service and prices at the new place are representative El Vaquero, then Mexican food lovers in the Dublin area can look forward to a new hang-out.

Anyone who has eaten at El Vaquero knows the food is always served piping hot and in large quantities too.

An all-time favorite and considered by some as the specialty of the house, is combination plate Number 10.

For a mere $3.75, the customer gets stuffed on two chile rellenos, salad, rice and beans.

Take a tip from guy who has eaten there since the place opened this saucy dinner is definitely a bargain.

The most expensive item on the menu is "Vaquero Favorito," which includes steak ranchero, chile relleno, salad, rice beans, and sopaipillas with honey.

It's a steal for only $5.50.

For starters, a hungry customer can try a plate heaped with Nachos — tortilla chips topped with melted cheese. Also listed under "Apetitos," are Nachos Compuestos which are tortilla chips individually layered with beans, cheese, guacamole and sour cream. It's a mouth-watering treat.

There are no less than 13 combination dinners ranging from chile relleno, cheese enchilada, tostadas to a taco and burrito.

"Platos Chicos," or plates for children are offered along with the diet delight also called "lo-cal compuesta." It includes shredded chicken, lettuce, tomatoes and savory sauce a fine deal for watchers of the belt line.

Each "Vaquero" dish is individually prepared which is just one reason why so many people return for more.

There is a banquet room for small private gatherings in addition to several booths with a quiet atmosphere.

There is plenty of parking near El Vaquero and a pleasant porch with wooden chairs in case the crowd dictates waiting.

El Vaquero also has a carry-out service for those who simply want to sit at home and enjoy the food.

It's a lip-smacking experience to dine at the place named after Indian horsemen who would round up cattle for followers of Hernando Cortez in the early 17th century. "El Vaquero," — comidas mexicanas at 455-6282. Give them a ring.

Dart homes

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The president of Dart Resorts says he was led to believe last April that a state ban on further development of Dart's Tahoe Donner community would be lifted.

But Sid Karsh said state Real Estate Commissioner David Fox changed his mind about lifting the ban, apparently after talking with Grass Valley lawyer Harold Berliner, who represents plaintiffs in a suit against the Dart project.

Karsh testified Tuesday as a state hearing resumed on Dart's protest against the ban on further sale of lots in the $40 million Tahoe Donner project near Truckee.

The ban was imposed in February, 1976, after more than 2,000 of the proposed 6,000 lots had been sold.

Dining out

The greening of a restaurant

Take Grand Central Station. Place Gilligan's Island inside. You've got Lehr's Greenhouse, six blocks east of Van Ness on Sutter in San Francisco.

Here is a restaurant of the 1970's — one with more than a menu. It has a theme all its own — the terrarium as dining room motif is jungle tropical, the interiors vintage Tarzan.

If you ever wanted to eat on the floor of a nursery, gazing upwards at the floor of the world, Lehr's is substitute for fantasy.

None of which is news to San Francisco diners. The Greenhouse is popular, reservations are necessary. But even regular customers are taken aback. This is the only restaurant where greens on the ceiling are more important than the ones in the plate.

The main dining room is a massive, elongated hall, glass empaneled on walls and roof. Ferns, banana trees and a lot of other stuff that used to be backdrop for grade B jungle movies, intermingle 30-feet over the dining tables.

Soft white lights emanate from behind the foliage, and are transformed into a cool, green glow. It's disconcerting to diners who glimpse splashes of color from above, gaze on high, and empty a spoonful of soup into their shirts.

Food is reasonable. So are the prices. But it wouldn't be noteworthy without the elevated forest, the touch that makes Lehr's a tourist stop for diners.

Menu is limited to steak, chicken and seafood. Prices range from $7 to $10 for complete dinners. That includes a salad bar embellished with relishes, jello moulds and other adornments found usually in smorgasboard dining houses.

Last Saturday night at least one waiter, anxious to place dinner orders, invited guests repeatedly to sample his salad bar. It was an unwelcome intrusion while cocktails were still being enjoyed, and it almost earned him a spot on top of the highest hanging fern in the place.

If it wasn't for the leafy floor show the highlight of dinner here would be home-made bread served in hot loaves. Two were provided initially for a party of seven, but four were devoured before dinner arrived.

Fillet Mignon drew the highest praise among entrees sampled, broiled with just the right amount of pinkness. Portions were not great, but then neither was the price.

Two chicken dishes were offered, Chicken Kiev, with sauteed mushrooms and white wine sauce, and Breast of Chicken Coq Au Vin. The later was a boned breast, rolled, stuffed with buttered herbs, and baked in batter.

Two salmon dishes were ordered, one, a good piece of broiled fish, the other, a poached salmon that wasn't as tempting.

The latter was mushy. It was served with a Hollandaise and shrimp sauce, and the sauce appeared artificial in its thickness.

Roast beef was served in paper-thin strips, much the way it comes in English

Pubs, though much more rare than they'd dare savor in The Isles.

All entrees came with baked potatoes or french fries, nothing else.

For dessert there were halved papayas, filled with ice cream. The fruit is a big item at Lehr's, and in fact, case-lots are stacked up at the dining room door for retail sale.

Sort of a Polynesian version of the french bread displays at airport coffee shops.

For heavier appetites there is a pastry cart which featured Black Forest Cake, Grand Marnier Cake, and Cheese Cake.

The Grand Marnier was chocolate with chocolate frosting and the liquor added. Cheese cake was not as creamy as it should have been, but still good.

None of which mattered last Saturday night, however, since dessert was downplayed by distraction even greater than Lehr's greenhouse effect. A buxom young mother at a nearby table, perhaps swept away by the primitive stands of plant life, chose that instant to nurse a ruddy-faced infant.

Tarzan, Jane, and Boy, would have felt right at home.

—by Mike Zampa

LeClaire calls for parking

PLEASANTON — The parking lot behind La Rochelle Restaurant is working out so well that the city ought to create another parking lot downtown paid by an assessment district, Council Member Joyce LeClaire told the city council Monday night.

"I find it difficult to park downtown to shop," said LeClaire, "and I have received support from merchants who said they would favor an assessment district for parking."

LeClaire declined to name the merchants, but felt that with a good location, the lot could be created.

Long waits too

Pedro's draws a crowd

LOS GATOS — The wait at "Pedro's" is at least half the experience of eating grade 'A', home-cooked Mexican food at this well known hot spot on the way to Santa Cruz.

Standing in line waiting can tire the legs unless you are geared for stints near an hour and a half.

But during those golden hours of leisure a sharp eye can readily spot a vacant seat as the man at the microphone hails the name of some lucky souls who scurry off to the dining room.

What's that? Someone's leaving a choice spot big enough for two people on a beautiful antiqued wooden bench with Mexican carvings on the back.

Hard luck, partner — It looks like that place goes to either the man with the cane, or that college kid with a cast on his leg.

In the meantime there is a lot of activity between the people standing on the veranda and the crowd at the bar.

A "margarita" at Pedro's is definitely the most popular drink for two reasons. Number one — the price is right; and number two — they are readily available on hot afternoons from one of the many señoritas dashing between kitchen, dining room, and veranda.

It was so packed Saturday evening that Pedro himself was herding the crowd inside his stucco gateway.

"The Rogers party please. There is a table available for the Rogers," called the man who is obviously the head waiter.

"Richard, he's calling for us," said one member of the group bustling toward the cash register.

"Sorry folks," said the waiter. "That's Rogers spelled R-o-d-g-e-r-s." At that stage of the ball game the words "Sala de la fuente," tacked above the arched brick hallway leading to the dining room, had only one meaning: "Go to the Chart House down the street."

It was worth the wait after we finally made it through the forbidden "arch way."

We had to settle for a not-so Mexican waiter named "Fritz," but the service was excellent and the food was delicious.

Fritz was even kind enough to ask one Spanish speaking waiter the meaning of "Sala de la fuente," and he found out it means, "room of the fountain."

Everything on the menu is a bargain. "Nachos" are a must for anyone who waited as long as we did. These tortilla chips are stacked with cheese and guacamole and all sorts of toppings. They definitely hit the spot.

Chile rellenos with cheese enchiladas is a very filling dish, as was a very rich portion of an enchilada stuffed with crab. Most diners were in the price range of $4.

As for desert — forget it. There is only room for any extras in the white bag that Fritz will fetch for anyone with a dog named "Woodrow."

The interior decorating at Pedro's is very unique and original. On the way to the door don't forget to check out the reed ceiling, hand painted murals, and stained glass windows. With all things weighed out it was a very entertaining dinner.

LAFCO to consider annexations

LIVERMORE — This city's request to annex three small properties it owns will be considered at a public hearing of Local Agency Formation Commission 4 p.m. Thursday.

The annexation proceedings are routine "cleanup" matters, according to City Clerk Dorothy Hock, who said she had not been notified by LAFCO that the hearings were to be held.

Included is a small slice of the Duarte Garage site at Portola Ave. and L Street, approximately three acres the city purchased a month ago to enlarge Max Baer Park, and the reservoir on Doolan Canyon Road where reclaimed water from the Livermore Water Reclamation Plant is stored. Hearing will be in the auditorium at 399 Elmhurst St., Hayward.

Olson to San Mateo branch

Myron L. Olson of Pleasanton has been named vice president of Security Pacific Bank's San Mateo office, it was recently announced.

A native of Minnesota, he received an associate of arts degree in business administration from Interstate Business College in Fargo, N.D. He joined Security Pacific Bank in 1966 as a management associate in Southern California.

Olson and his wife, Carol, reside in Pleasanton.

Your choice of two, they're both good

If you're food mood is leaning toward something distinctive and delectable, La Casa Rosa in San Juan Bautista, California is apt to be the place that will satisfy you.

They are open everyday but Tuesday and serve luncheons only. Their serving hours are from 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

San Juan Bautista is a three-mile side street off of Highway 101 about 50 miles south of San Jose. Besides having La Casa Rosa to enjoy, there is a town proper plus a Mission and plaza surrounded by historical buildings.

La Casa Rosa, also known as "The Pink House," is located at 107 Third Street; phone (408) 623-4563.

Their luncheon-only menu boasts just two entrees — "Old California Casserole" or "Chicken Souffle." But quality overshadows lack of quantity. What you get to eat for around $4 is outstanding in every respect — food, service and atmosphere.

The meal begins with a generous salad of Butter Lettuce and fresh herb dressing. The herbs are grown in the backyard in an enchanting herb garden. The dressing is "a la house."

Rolls are baked locally. They can be enhanced with the choicest selection of jellies, preserves and chutneys I've seen offered in many a moon.

Some of the flavors are apricot chutney with curry, peach chutney with ginger, pear chutney with almonds, spiced cranberries, pomegranate jelly, seedless wild mountain blackberry preserves and Santa Rosa plum preserves. These sweet-toothsome tantalizers are on sale in a shop on the premises. They can also be ordered by mail — along with other goodies like the house's fresh herb french dressing, Jubilee Cherries and Bombay sauce for meat.

The Old California Casserole is a native of Peru, according to one of the brochures available on each table. This dish has a corn base, melted sharp cheese and meat sauce. "Hearty" and "bold" the waitress called it. We agreed and added, "scrumptious."

The Chicken Souffle looks like a dream, tastes heavenly and is bolder than most souffles dare to be. The batterbread topping is ethereal.

Nearing the bursting point you think you cannot possibly down another morsel. Then you spy the three dessert offerings. They are sherbet (pink), ice cream and cheesecake.

Since there were three of us aboard the day we found this gourmet port, each of us ordered one but tasted the others. The sherbet had a super flavor, the macadamia nut ice cream was the true article — real cream, no slushy substitutes — and the cheesecake was a resounding success.

For 80 cents you can order a carafe of Ash Blonde or Strawberry Blond aperitif wine. They are three parts dry French and two parts Italian wines filtered through charcoal. Tasty! Other wines are also available plus a good beer.

La Casa Rosa was built as a private home in 1878. It opened as a restaurant in 1935. Jo and Beth Shockey acquired the restaurant in 1964. They follow the founder's precepts of providing food for the discerning. In 1973 their son Charles and Linda, his wife, joined Jo and Beth in business.

Several gourmet magazines plus various newspapers carrying food sections have "discovered" La Casa Rosa and requested their recipes.

The "Old California Casserole" can be ordered for take-out.

Gift certificates for luncheon at La Casa Rosa are now available. Cross your fingers that somebody gives you one.

Carter's economic goals 'unrealistic'

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Those Carter Administration economic goals — 4.5 per cent unemployment, 4 per cent inflation and a balanced budget by 1981 — are increasingly being adjudged unrealistic by professional analysts.

While making such determinations, however, critics generally are avoiding any general denunciation of the Carter economic program. It's the goals, not the policies, that are unrealistic, they seem to be saying.

Even Charles L. Schultz, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, conceded that the balanced budget goal was "an ambitious objective." But he suggested it was better to seek than to avoid the challenge.

One of the assumptions underlying that goal is that business capital outlays will grow at a 9 or 10 per cent annual rate for four or five years. But that superior achievement has been attained only once before, in the first half of the 1960s. Numerous critics have jumped on these capital outlay assumptions, partly because of long experience with seeing spending fall far short of the projections made for it in various surveys.

One of Schultz's former associates at the Brookings Institution,

George Perry, is among those who raises doubts about the unemployment and inflation goals.

Perry recently published a study indicating that to achieve a jobless rate of 5 per cent by 1981 the nation would have to boost employment 3.2 per cent a year and Gross National Product 5.7 per cent annually.

Since such growth rates have not been achieved in recent decades, the suggestion coming from the Perry study is that it would require an unprecedented and unforeseen set of circumstances to achieve the goals.

Moreover, Perry cautions, that old bugaboo inflation must be contended with. Should it become nastier, policy makers would be required to slow the rate of growth and thus the economy's ability to absorb workers.

Robert J. Gordon, a Northwestern University economist, also is wary of the sensitive relationship between the speed of expansion and the rate of inflation. He expects inflation to worsen; he terms the outlook "grim."

Gordon suggests strongly that a plan which includes the twin goals of rapid expansion and less inflation is a plan at odds with itself. The experience, he says, indicates that inflation is more a consequence of the speed of expansion rather than its duration.

Get your feet off the cactus

By BOB RAST
Associated Press Writer

TUCSON, Ariz. AP — Fred Harvey designs tables, lamps, planters and other similar objects from the skeletal wood of dead saguaro cacti. No two of the desert leviathans are alike.

The 28-year-old Morris-town, N.J., native moved to Arizona nearly 10 years ago seeking a degree in psychology from the University of Arizona. But he became disenchanted and sought a creative outlet at which he could earn a living with his hands.

"Saguaro is a semihard wood, trunk-shaped and formed of a series of interlocking ribs," Harvey explained. "You start by scanning the desert on private property, with the owner's permission because it's illegal to remove cacti from public lands.

"When I see a piece of wood," he went on, "I know exactly what it's going to be used for. The arms are often legs of tables. I use everything. There's no waste."

"For my trough planters," he said, "I inlay the ribs on the side to close it off. I use only saguaro wood and I don't use metal on any of my pieces except for lighting fixtures."

The desert giants can reach heights of nearly 70 feet and weigh as much as five tons. Rodney Engard of Phoenix' Botanical Gardens says it's not uncommon to find specimens with more than 50 arms.

"Since they don't form tree rings, there is no absolute way of telling, but the oldest ones are estimated to be about 250 years old," Engard said. "They often take 10 years to grow their first couple of feet and don't mature and produce seeds until they're 80."

Harvey exhibited a dining table which he said is his finest work to date. Finding the right skeleton was a stroke of luck, he said, after four years of looking. He's been offered $1,200 for the result.

"I'd been looking for one with four evenly spaced arms since I started working with saguaros and I stumbled on this one in the desert west of Tucson where some land was being developed," he said. "The bulldozers were just going to plow it all under."

Decorator store

Grand opening ceremonies were held recently for the new Interior Decorator store located at the corner of Main and Neal streets in Pleasanton. The new member of the Chamber of Commerce offers excellence in interior design and custom drapery work. A unique feature of their showroom in the center of downtown Pleasanton is the continually changing stock of beautiful decorator accessories. The store is open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and stays open until 8 p.m. on Thursday. Present at the grand opening ceremonies were (left to right) William Hirst, president of the Chamber of Commerce, owners Linda and Glenn Means, Maid of Pleasanton Jori Alexander, and Bob Philcox, mayor of Pleasanton.

Management student

PLEASANTON — Ben Fernandez of the Cooper-McKenzie - Murphy Agency recently completed a week's advanced agency management conference at Claremont Men's College.

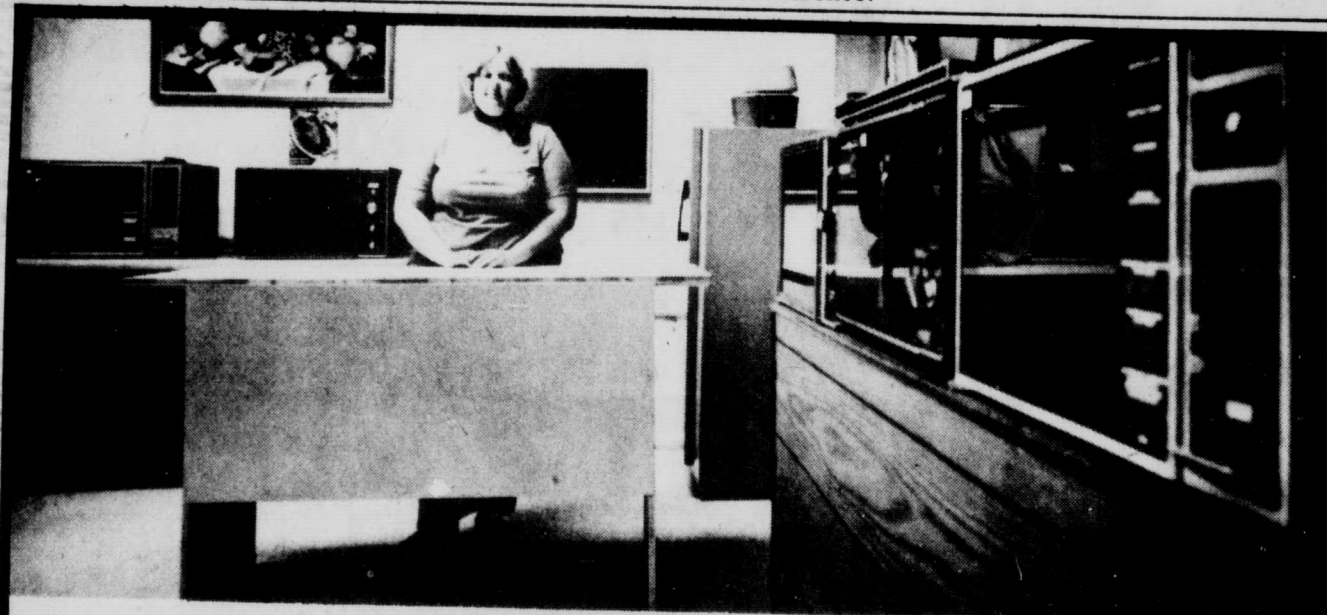

Conducted annually by the Independent Insurance Agents Association of California, the conference offers a comprehensive program of courses to assist insurance personnel in improving the knowledge and skills needed to continually upgrade the effectiveness of the independent agent. This was the 29th year of the conference.

Glen R. Walder of Dublin has been elected to the board of directors of the Alameda County Heart Association. Pate D. Thomson, M.D.,

Board pick of Berkeley has been elected president of the association, succeeding Donald F. Lundstrom of Fremont, who held the post last year.
